

UC Berkeley

Places

Title

Contributors 9.1

Permalink

<https://escholarship.org/uc/item/0h02x1j2>

Journal

Places, 9(1)

ISSN

0731-0455

Publication Date

1994-01-15

Peer reviewed

CONTRIBUTORS

Wayne Attoe

has taught architecture at Louisiana State University, the University of Texas at Austin and the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. He lives in San Luis Obispo County, California.

Nona Bloomer

is the Historical Room and Reference Librarian for the Guilford Free Library. She is also an organic gardener with a background in intellectual history and philosophy.

Patricia Tusa Fels

runs her own architecture practice in Seattle. She has lived and worked abroad, primarily in Italy and Malaysia, and recently completed a book about cities and change.

Ken Greenberg

is a principal of Berridge Lewinberg Greenberg in Toronto and former director of the architecture and urban design division of Toronto's planning and development office.

N.John Habraken

has researched adaptable housing design. He was founder and chair of the architecture department at Eindhoven Technical University and later came to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as head of the department of architecture, where he taught design, design methods and theory. Recently he joined a partnership to develop an infill system for housing.

John McKean

is head of interior architecture in the School of Architecture and Interior Design at the University of Brighton, England.

Doug Kelbaugh

is professor of architecture and urban design at the University of Washington and principal in Kelbaugh, Calthorpe & Associates. He is a BA and M.Arch. graduate of Princeton, and his work has won twenty design awards/competitions and been published in more than 100 books and periodicals. He edited The Pedestrian Pocket book, a best-seller that resulted from a charrette he led. He is Fellow of the American Institute of Architects.

Charles W. Moore

was an architect and designer with a long career in teaching and practice, most recently at the University of Texas, Austin, and Moore/Andersson architects. His energy and imagination inspired countless students and fellow architects. He is author, with Donlyn Lyndon, of the forthcoming Chambers for a Memory Palace and was awarded the AIA Gold Medal in 1991.

Dan Solomon

is principal of Solomon, Inc., in San Francisco and professor of architecture at the University of California, Berkeley. He is author of ReBuilding and has contributed to numerous architectural and commercial publications, including The Pedestrian Pocket Book.

Gregory Tung

is an urban designer and partner of Freedman, Tung & Bottomley, urban design and town planning, San Francisco. He has taught architecture at the University of California, Berkeley, and has participated in several regional Mayors Institute on City Design sessions. He studied architecture at Yale and Berkeley.