IT IS WITH GREAT PLEASURE that I present the fourteenth volume of the UCLA Historical Journal, a special issue devoted to historical studies of women and gender. The articles, notes and book reviews in this issue of the Journal represent some of the most exciting work being done by history graduate students in the United States and Britain.

I would like to thank Lisa Sousa for her tireless efforts on behalf of the Journal this year. The final stages of preparing this issue for publication took place while I was 3,000 miles away from Los Angeles and Lisa's role in ensuring that this process ran smoothly was critical. In addition, I would like to thank Kevin McBride-Luman and the associate editors for their eagerness to learn and contribute to this issue of the Journal: Becky Mead, Carol Cini, Sangeeta Gupta, and Carolyn Eichner. Our adjunct editors gave invaluable critical insight and commentary on each of the articles and we greatly appreciate their efforts: Houri Berberian, Yun-Wun Cho, Elyssa Faisson, Sonja Fritzsche, Kimberly Jones, Jennifer Koslow, Evelyn Lanner, Marian McBride-Luman, Brian O'Neil, Josh Sides, Elizabeth Townsend, and George Vanderbilt. I also wish to extend my thanks to all the authors in this issue who creatively responded to our comments and tight production deadlines. This issue was designed and produced by Brenda Johnson-Grau whose patience and responsiveness to the Journal's needs were cheerfully provided.

Finally, on behalf of the Journal I would like to express our sincere appreciation to Professor Ron Mellor, Chair of the UCLA History Department, for his continuing support of the Journal and to Kevin Terraciano, director of UCLA Graduate Student Publications, for guiding us through the tricky administrative waters of UCLA bureaucracy which provided much of our funding.
