Macías Ends Appointment as Director

SANTA BARBARA—Reynaldo F. Macías (Education, UCSB) will end his tenure as Director of the University of California Linguistic Minority Research Institute at the end of December 1997. His departing statement is presented here.

Dear Colleagues,

It has been a tremendous 5½ years at the UC LMRI! It almost doesn't seem that long of a time. I have been privileged to help steer the Institute's growth during a turbulent time for language minority and bilingual educational policy in California and the nation. In 1992, when I became director, there was no Proposition 187, or 209, or 227. Since then, not only have these initiatives been adopted by California voters (with the exception of 227, which comes before the voters in June 1998), but we have seen the State Board of Education become more conservative and provide support to districts who have not done well by students with limited English proficiency, and a UC Board of Regents which has restricted admissions and access to the UC of Latino and Black students.

During this same time period, there was a tremendous, positive restructuring of federal educational policies, including that of the Bilingual Education. The National and California Associations for Bilingual Education have continued to grow and provide a strong leadership in the fight for the rights of all school children and youth, and the University of California has supported the bilingual education doctoral programs on various campuses. The UC LMRI and its researchers have grown into contributing roles in these and other events. It has contributed research to both the state and the nation.

The Institute has accomplished and been involved in these activities despite limited funds and human resources. The central office had one full-time person in 1992, and now has 3½ full-time positions, some supported through extramural grants. I am most happy to describe a committed and hard working staff at the Institute. It has by and large been a pleasure and joy working with them during these years. I would like to thank them all for that pleasure and joy.

I also want to thank the members of the Faculty Steering Committee, who displayed a tremendous commitment of time, energy and leadership in making the Institute activities a success. I must say that the opportunity to work with these esteemed colleagues was, in no small measure, a main reason for accepting the directorship, lo, those many years ago.

A thank you as well, to all my colleagues in the academy and in the field of practitioner scholars who staff the front lines of our daily struggles. Your support these last five years has been a source of motivation and energy.

I don't expect to fade away any time soon. I will continue to work with the Institute as a principal investigator. I will also provide time and support for transitional activities over the next six months.

The Institute will undergo changes over the next year or so. The Faculty Steering Committee and others have recommended that the campus for the Institute headquarters be reconcepted. If and when this occurs, it may continue at Santa Barbara or may be on one of the other UC campuses. The UC Office of the President has also committed to increase the system contribution to the Institute's budget. I trust that both of these changes will contribute to the Institute's growth in activities, influence, and productivity.

Let's keep up the good work.

Chicano Studies Educator Honored

Dr. Luis Leal (Chicano Studies, UCSB) has taught for 55 years on university campuses across the nation. He currently teaches at UC Santa Barbara, imparting to American students what might be called the Mexican version of the Encyclopedia Britannica. For this and other accomplishments, President Clinton awarded Leal, 90, the National Humanities Medal in a White House ceremony. The award honors persons whose work has deepened understanding of the humanities.

Born in Linares, Nuevo León, in northern Mexico, Leal received a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1950. He taught there and at the University of Mississippi, Emory University and the University of Illinois from 1942 to 1976, when he retired to California. But retirement did not stick, and he resumed teaching at UC Santa Barbara and other colleges.

He has written 16 books, hundreds of articles and reviews, edited 20 anthologies and made 69 contributions to encyclopedias. Among his disciples were major writers like the late Tomás Rivera, once chancellor of the University of California, Riverside.

In 1988, the National Assn. for Chicano Studies gave Leal its Scholar of the Year award. In 1991 he received the Aztec Eagle award, the highest honor offered by the Mexican government to non-Mexican citizens, and in 1995, UCSB established the endowed Luis Leal Chair in Chicano Studies.

Leal is more than an academic. He is a caring man engaged in a personal crusade against ignorance who patiently educates people, using persuasion, emotion, intelligence and his personal example.

NEW SYSTEMS ADMINISTRATOR RUNS LMRINET

Jay Tankerley is the new System Administrator for the UC Linguistic Minority Research Institute. He is currently pursuing a B.S. in Computer Science at the UCSB College of Engineering. Jay has more than 10 years programming experience on a variety of systems. His first software development projects were done on an Apple II in BASIC while some of his more recent work is in C and Java on Macintosh and UNIX systems. In the last four years, Jay has worked with a number of platforms including Solaris, HP-UX, Linux, Windows NT, Macintosh, and Netware.

Jay's primary responsibilities at UC LMRI are to help in the strategic planning and growth of the Institute's electronic infrastructure, maintain the Institute's network and servers as the system administrator, and to oversee the operation of the Institute's desktop computer systems. The LMRI network includes printers, hubs, PC's, and two Sun servers over three locations. His duties include scheduling backups, recommending and performing software and hardware upgrades, and programming scripts to automate common server tasks. He also manages the UC LMRI list server, which currently consists of more than 50 email lists and several thousand subscribers.

EVENT ORGANIZATION & LOGISTICS

JUST GOT BETTER

Lorraine Cruz joined the Institute in August as Events Coordinator. She is a graduate of UCSB, where she majored in Sociology. Lorraine is from Salinas, CA, where she grew up and attended Alisal High School. Since graduation several years ago, she has worked in the Santa Barbara area, most recently responsible for travel and logistical arrangements for a local consulting firm.

Lorraine Cruz
Events Coordinator, UCLMRI

Lorraine is responsible for all the logistics of meetings, conferences and lectures sponsored by the Institute, as well as for overall scheduling for the Institute. She will be the primary person responsible for the annual conference, the quarterly Faculty Steering Committee meetings, and visiting scholar lectures.

Application deadlines

The Hispanic Border Leadership Institute is now accepting applications for its doctoral W.K. Kellogg fellowships. Deadline: November 21, 1997. HBLI is a leadership development initiative and a doctoral fellowship program in educational leadership. The Institute's overall goal is to develop educational leaders in the U.S.-Mexico borderlands who are aware of and sensitive to the needs of Hispano/Chicano students and who possess change agent mentalities, characteristics, and skills to influence public education policy. Those interested please check out the fellowship application at the website: www.HBLI.ORG, or call (505) 646-1982.

The Ford Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowship Minorities Program identifies outstanding researchers and scholars who are members of minority groups whose underrepresentation has been severe and long-standing in the professoriate and in formal programs of postdoctoral research and scholarship in an environment free from the interference of their normal professional duties. The National Research Council (NRC) will conduct a national competition to award approximately 25 fellowships to current or potential college or university faculty members/researchers. This Program Announcement and application materials may be downloaded from the Internet

Southeast Asian Culture and Education Foundation

The South Asian Culture and Education Foundation (SEACAEF) is a non-profit foundation organized exclusively for educational purposes. Founded in 1994, its primary goal is to develop a mutual understanding between Southeast Asian Americans and Americans of other heritages through publications, newsletters, conferences, seminars and workshops on Southeast Asian cultures, languages and literature.

SEACAEF activities include:

- Instructional materials development in English and Southeast Asian languages;
- Consulting and staff development workshops in language minority education, Southeast Asian languages (Cambodian, Lao, Hmong, and Vietnamese for teachers), and culture and communication; and
- Publication of a newsletter in English on Southeast Asian cultures and literature.

SEACAEF has received a grant from the U.S. Department of Education for the production of books translated into four Southeast Asian languages (Cambodian, Hmong, Lao, and Vietnamese). The following titles are currently available in the aforementioned languages: "Helping Your Child Achieve in School: A Handbook for Southeast Asian Parents" and "A Bilingual Glossary of School Terminology." The organization also has a number of other titles related to the education of Southeast Asian students.

For more information on SEACAEF and its products, you may contact them at P.O. Box 2441, Huntington Beach, CA 92647-2441; Phone: (714) 847-0718; Fax: (714) 847-4009
