ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Throughout the development of our second issue, we have known the constant experience of collective effort in the form of continuing support from old friends and enthusiastic response from new ones. In acknowledgement of the fact that the success of our work is due to that kind of coming-together, we wish to express our thanks to those individuals and organizations who have in one way or another assisted us along the way.

The Editors extend their thanks to Ms. Toni Cooke, Ms. Karen Frye, Dr. Arthur Smith, Mr. Ken Long, the Black Law Students Association, the Black Graduate Students Association, the Student Bar Association, the Graduate Students Association, the UCLA Student Fund, the UCLA Foundation, and the Staff of the UCLA Center for Afro-American Studies for their continuing and invaluable support.

Our appreciation also goes to Vice Chancellor Charles Z. Wilson and Mr. Robert A. Rogers for their unique and timely contributions; to Carole Alston, Barbara Bosustow, Dorothy Otani and William Richardson, Walter Bremond, Dr. Leslie Dunbar, Vernon Eagle and Leonard E. Ryan for on-the-spot assistance when it was needed most; to Beverly Robinson and Andrea Hill for efficient operation of the JOURNAL Office; to the Stanford Law Review for a particularly valuable contribution in granting us the privilege of reprinting William Bennett Turner's article.

Certainly it is impossible, however unnecessary, to single out any contribution as being of paramount importance to the success of the JOURNAL. Without a doubt, however, our heartfelt thanks go to Barbara J. Williams, Kenneth L. Collins, Frank A. Work and John C. Floyd for it was their combined vision, commitment and dedication which made the dream of the BLACK LAW JOURNAL a reality. Further, our profound gratitude goes to our inmate correspondents who best articulate and keep before us the need which is the focus of this issue.
