The document, or rather, dossier of documents (expediente), published here sheds a very curious if lurid light on the lives of ordinary people in the first years of Hispanic New Mexico. The Cíbola Project (http://escholarship.org/uc/search?entity=rcrs\_ias\_ucb\_cibola) has published a large collection of documents concerning the exploration and settlement of New Mexico by Juan de Oñate, but they in general have little to say explicitly about the daily activities of settlers and their families.

Padre Francisco de Escobar, Franciscan commissary in New Mexico, conducted the trial of María de Zamora, though what we have might better be described as a preliminary hearing than an actual trial. In fact, in his report to the Holy Office in Mexico City, he states that he considered the evidence insufficient to justify a formal trial of María de Zamora before that tribunal. No further official action was taken against the accused, who was nonetheless severely punished, perhaps unjustly, by the evil reputation for witchcraft and sorcery that she acquired as a result of the accusations.

Padre Escobar is best known as the author of a report on Juan de Oñate's expedition to the Gulf of California in 1605 (edited and translated in Caso et al 2014 and translated by Hammond and Rey 1953, 2:1012-1031). He is also on record as wishing to establish a mission among the native tribes living along the Colorado river near its outlet into the Gulf of California (De Marco and Craddock 2014).

The accused, María de Zamora, accompanied the reinforcements that arrived in New Mexico in 1600 along with her family, including her eventual accuser, her daughter Lucía. In the inspection and muster roll of the reinforcements (edited by Cerrudo et al 2014; cf. Hammond and Rey 1953, 1:558) she appears as follows:

“Maria de Çamora, muger legitima de Bartolome | de Montoya, hija de Pedro Çamora, natural |de Mexico, con cinco hijos, tres barones, dos | mugeres, todos de diez años para abajo, | llamados Francisco e Diego, Jusepe, Lucia | e Petronila; lleuan [en] su sseruicio vna | muchacha yndia llamada Ysael, | de diez años, natural de Tecama” (fol. 560r13-20).

Her husband, Bartolomé de Montoya, figures in the same muster roll twice, first perhaps as settler, then as soldier (Hammond and Rey 1953, 1:535, 550; I speculate that in the first instance “Bernabé” is a scribal mistake for “Bartolomé”. The two names are conflated in Hammond and Rey’s index, 2:1174.):

“Bernaue (?) de Montoya lleua lo siguiente: | ~ una carreta con ocho bueyes y en ella | su muger e hijos, | ~ una espada y una cota, | ~ tres cauallos y tres potros, | ~ tres bestidos e no firmo por | no sauver; rrogo a un testigo; lo firme por el” ([fol. 537r28-v3]).

“Bartolome de Montoya, hijo de | Francisco de Montoya, natural de Can- | telana, armado de todas armas | segun que los demas; barbinegro, | pequeño de cuerpo, de beinte y ocho años” (fol. 552v25/29).

Despite his confessed illiteracy (assuming Bernabé and Bartolomé are one and the same person), Bartolomé was a signatory to the petition addressed on December 1, 1604, to Cristóbal de Oñate, acting governor for his father who was away seeking the south sea (Mar del Sur), i.e., the Pacific Ocean, to have Juan López Holguín exiled from the settlement at San Gabriel (ed. and trans. Craddock and Polt 2015). On Bartolomé de Montoya and his family see Chávez 1992:77-78.

The action for sorcery was brought against María de Zamora by her son-in-law Diego Robledo, husband of her 12-year old daughter Lucía. He was one of the original settlers recruited in 1597, along with his father and three brothers and is thus recorded in the inspection and muster roll carried out by Juan de Frías Salazar (ed. De Marco and Craddock 2015; cf. Hammond and Rey 1953, 1:265, 290):

“Digo yo Pedro Robledo, alferez de la compaña del capitán Alonso de | Sossa Albornoz, que tube noticia de un bando que Vuestra Merced mando he- | char en este rreal y para el cumplimiento del hago memoria de | mi perssona y quattro hijos que van en la jornada, que son Diego | Robledo y Alonso Robledo y Pedro Robledo y Francisco Robledo” (fol. 471r15-19).

“Diego de Robledo, natural de Maqueda, hijo del | dicho Pedro Robledo de arriba, de buen cuerpo, varbirro- | jo, de hedad de veinte y siete años, con sus armas” (fol. 490v9-11).

Diego accompanied Vicente de Zaldívar in his exploration of the buffalo plains in 1598 (ed. and trans. Craddock and Polt 1999; Hammond and Rey 1953, 1:398-405). After his brother Pedro had been killed in the initial battle at Acoma Pueblo (December 4, 1598), Diego took part in the reprisal (January 21-23, 1599), though he was not called on to testify in the trial of the Acoma Indians (ed. and trans. Craddock and Polt 2014; Hammond and Rey 1953, 1:428-479). He was immortalized by Gaspar Pérez de Villagrá in his epic poem Historia de la Nueva México (1610), who portrays him as victorious in single combat with two fictional Acoma warriors, Qualco (canto 31, vv. 108-149) and Pilco (canto 32, vv. 251-269; cf. Martín Rodríguez 2010). For genealogical data concerning the Robledo family, see Chávez 1999:93-94.

Diego’s accusation, according to Padre Escobar, followed upon a dispute he had with his mother-in-law, concerning her alleged attempts to poison him with certain powders. Diego claimed to have discovered these powders in the possession of his child bride, who confessed that she had them from her mother, who wished Lucía to administer them to Diego, with the intention of cutting off his water (or more technically of inducing acute urinary retention) and giving him a belly ache, all in hopes of causing his demise. Diego then reported the stories his wife Lucía had told him about the supposed sorcery of María de Zamora. Lucía was accordingly called as a witness and provided, with a wealth of details, much damning testimony against her mother. None of the remaining witnesses corroborated any of Lucía's more lurid claims; María's own loyal servants maintained under interrogation a stony silence, while she herself denied every serious charge.

It seems of interest to mention some of Lucía's allegations. Quite traditional is the use of a bodily ointment to lubricate the witches' supernatural excursions and their participation in an aquelarre (the term does not appear in the document) or witches' sabbath in which, among other rites, the devotees kiss the hind-quarters (rabo) of a great billy-goat (cabrón); testimony of Diego Robledo, fol. 344r36-v6, further, and more dramatic, details in the testimony of Lucía de Zamora, fol. 347r32-v12. For a 20th-century account of such goings-on, see Rael 1977, 2:600-602, §512 "Las brujas", recounted by Simmons 1974:62-64. Other allegations of Lucía are quite unusual and I have yet to find parallels in other sources, such as Scholes 1935:233-238. For instance:

"a uisto a su madre | poner vn lebrillo con agua y en el agua dos habas | contrarias vna de otra y dos mayçes ansimis- | mo frontero vno de otro y que luego las santi- | guaba y deçia "de biga en biga" o "de bira en bira" | y que con esto se juntan las habas y los maiçes | y que benia vn animal con vnas orejas gran- | des y tuertas y se lo metia debaxo de las faldas | y se ponia su madre caballera en el" (testimony of Diego Robledo, fol. 344v10-18).

Lucía's own account adds numerous details:

"tomo la dicha su madre | un lebrillo de agua y ençima del bordo deste lebrillo | ponja dos habas y dos maiçes fronteros vnos de otros | y la dicha su madre andaba a la rredonda del lebrillo | arrastrandose y diçiendo vnas palabras que | le parecio a esta testigo que no eran en española | lengua y a la postrera palabra entendio esta | testigo que deçia "la chobera" y a esta palabra | saltaban los granos de maiz dentro del agua y las habas | vna tras otra y el maiz caya apartado del lebrillo | y luego benia vn animal que le parecio a esta tes- | tigo que seria como vn cabron de vn año casi como | amarillo que no supo decir la color con la cola rre- | tuerta y lebantada sobre el anca y delgada como | cola de puerco y se metia en el agua y su madre | desta testigo subia ençima y estaba caballe- | ra en el dicho animal y en esto esta testigo se yba | porque no la biese la dicha su madre" (testimony of Lucía de Zamora, fol. 348r3-20).

María de Zamora allegedly could summon demons by rapping upon a wall:

"le a dicho la dicha su muger que su madre tiene pacto | con el demonjo y qu'el dicho Robledo pregunto a la | dicha su muger como sauia estas cosas y le a rrespon- | dido que ella a uisto a la dicha su madre que se mete | en vn aposento y da con la mano en la pared y di- | ce "ben aca Satanás que yo te prometo este | dedo" señalando vn dedo de la mano y que lue- | go le rresponden dentro y sale vna criatura | y habla con el y le diçe que quiere sauver algunas cosas que le pregunta" (testimony of Diego Robledo, fol. 344v26-35).

Compare Lucía's version:

"a bisto a la dicha su madre en el mjsmo aposento | donde se vntaba que despues de puesto el sol | antes que fuese de noche daba vnos golpes con | la mano a puño cerrado que heran cinco golpes | que no oyo bien esta testigo las palabras que de- | cia mas de que oyo decir “Berçebu” y que con esto | bino vn lechoncillo y le dijo la dicha su madre no se | que preguntas entre las cuales pregunto que hacian | en casa de Ana Ortiz y otra vez bido otro tanto y a | la mjsma ora y con las palabras que a decla- | rado y golpes en la pared y bido que bino vn pe- | rrillo chiquito lanudo negro y le dijo al cochi- | nito que a dicho la primera vez que le daria el | dedo del coraçon de la mano yzquierda y quando | el perrillo le dijo que le daria el dedo mas | pequeño y se lo señalaba” (testimony of Lucía de Zamora, fol. 347v29-348r1).

No doubt Lucía heard many witch tales told by her elders during evenings by the fireside, but her own imagination seems to have carried her beyond what was usually recounted about witches. Her account of her mother's preparations for her well-oiled nocturnal excursions in spirit is, as the saying goes, as good as a play (fol. 347r30-v12).

Most of the remaining testimony refers to the use of powders to maim and kill or to arouse amorous passion, in the latter case primarily to restore the affections of a wayward husband while simultaneously causing him to detest his paramour. Also frequently denounced is the abuse of peyote, both as a poison and as a hallucinatory stimulant. María de Zamora admits to using peyote but only for medicinal purposes, in poultices (bidmas, mod. Sp. bizmas) and in enemas (ayudas), while denying that she ever drank a potion made from peyote or had given such to anyone to drink (fol. 350r39-v6).

Father Escobar's cover letter (fol. 342r-v) refers only to María de Zamora, but the title page of the depositions lists two more defendants, Ana Ortiz and María, wife of Francisco López. After Diego Robledo's accusation (fol. 344r-345r) Lucía was placed in the house of Alonso Gómez, perhaps as a form of witness protection (fol. 345v). The next person called to testify (fol. 345v-346r) was Francisca Robledo, wife of Juan de Tapia, and presumably sister of Diego Robledo, who accused María, wife of Francisco López, of doctoring some ears of corn (elotes) with red powder and feeding them to Francisco de Nieles and Pedro Lucero, in order to “enamour these buggers (putos)”, in the piquant phrase of the alleged sorceress which the witness quotes. The same María allegedly also made use of yellow roots acquired from an Indian servant of Juan de Medina for the same erotic purpose.

Next called was Lucía de Zamora (fol. 346v-348v) whose testimony has been described and extracted above. After she spoke, Father Escobar took her to the house of her father-in-law Bartolomé de Montoya to see the chamber (aposento) where María de Zamora allegedly performed her demonic rites (fol. 348v12-20). The chamber was found to have no door, a fact which may have counted against the veracity of Lucía, who had described a door with some detail (fol. 347r33-35). Father Escobar then required Diego Robledo to turn over the powders he had taken from his wife (fol. 348v24-32). The testimony of María de Zamora's servants, or rather I should say lack of testimony, is disappointing; the Otomita Indian María (fol. 349r1-13) and Inés from Toluca (fol. 349r18-28) knew nothing, heard nothing, and saw nothing concerning the charges against their mistress.

On the last day of December, 1607, Father Escobar pronounced a sermon threatening excommunication against anyone who had knowledge of witchcraft or sorcery and failed to come forward to denounce the evil-doer (fol. 349r31-v4), and who should appear but María de Zamora's busy daughter Lucía, bearing further tales of her mother's alleged sorcery, in this instance the confection of a home-made cosmetic that supposedly would render all men susceptible to her charms. At her mother's suggestion Lucía applied the preparation to her own face three times, with what result we are not told (fol. 349v5-16). Responding to Father Escobar's sermon, the soldier Juan Pérez appeared to state that he had seen Francisco de Montoya, son of María de Zamora, in possession of a small root supposedly potent in attracting female affection, which Francisco claimed to have obtained from an Indian (fol. 349v19-23).

The trial continues with María de Zamora's "confession", in the course of which she denies all the serious charges brought against her (fols. 350r-351r), conceding only that she made medicinal use of peyote, as mentioned above (fol. 350r39-v6), that on one occasion she has recounted the story of a Mexican witch just by way of telling tales (fol. 350v7-15), and that she once used a broom as a device to ward off evil spirits from the crib of her child Francisco (fol. 351r1-12). María's nine-year old son Diego was called to answer the assertion that he carried powders from his mother to Lucía, but the youth denied the allegation categorically (fol. 351r27-v3).

At this point on January 4, 1607, Father Escobar declared his intention to refer the matter to the Inquisition in Mexico City (fol. 351v6-17). Two months later, on March 5, 1607, Father Escobar announced that María de Zamora had again been accused by her daughter Lucía of attempting to administer fatal powders to her son-in-law Diego Robledo (fol. 351v20-32); accordingly Lucía was again called to testify (fol. 352r1-352v8). Her account of how her little brother Diego carried the powders from the pueblo of Cuyamongue where María de Zamora had taken up residence, presumably as a result of the scandal, to Lucía with instructions to administer them to her husband and to her sister-in-law, of how she refused to perform the dastardly deeds and handed the powders over to her mother-in-law, and of how the powders are fabricated are quite circumstantial. That same day Father Escobar commanded that the governor, Juan de Oñate, be informed of the trial and that Diego Robledo and Lucía de Zamora should not be allowed to leave New Mexico; at the same time, María de Zamora, her husband Bartolomé de Montoya, and their childred are forbidden to enter San Gabriel as long as the trial remains pending (fol. 352r11-23). The concluding document of August 23, 1607 (fol. 353r) is a petition of Diego Robledo to absent himself and his wife from New Mexico, with full legal guarantees that he will make Lucía available for further interrogation whenever the authorities should require it. It should be noted in fine that neither Ana Ortiz nor María, wife of Francisco López, were called to answer the allegations made against them as it were en passant during the testimony.

The linguistic traits of this document are as interesting to the philologist as are its cultural features to the anthropologist and historian, and under both headings would reward further detailed study. A small glossary of interesting terms appears after this introduction.

The transcription is paleographic, but abbreviations have been tacitly resolved. Punctuation, word division, and the use of capital letters have been modernized. Editorial deletions are enclosed in parentheses ( . . . ), editorial emendations and additions in brackets, [ . . . ]; scribal deletions are signaled with a caret inside the parentheses (^ . . . ), scribal emendations and additions with a caret inside the brackets [^ . . . ]. Parentheses that actually occur in the text are represented with the special characters "(...)" to differentiate them from editorial deletions. Curly brackets enclose descriptive terms: {rubric}; square brackets also enclose information about format: [left margin], [right margin], etc. The text of marginalia is set off in italics. The text has numerous passages that are difficult to read because the ink has bled through the pages; they are signaled in this fashion: yellow highlighting = uncertain text; ?? = unreadable text. Any assistance with deciphering those passages would be most welcome.

Special thanks are due to Viridiana Rivera Álvarez, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, who provided her own photographs from the original documents (reproduced in this edition) and made various important corrections in the transcription. The photographs permitted the correction of some seriously erroneous readings in the earlier version of this edition. For the current update, John Polt proofread both the introduction and the transcription, enabling me to correct a good number of errors and misreadings.

En esta tierra de vna pendencia que huuo entre vnas consuegras o entre suegras y yernos resulta vna causa contra Maria de Çamora, acumulandole el yerno y marido de su hija que con vnos poluos le quiso por diuersas vezes quitar la vida. Las palabras que en razon desto huuo vinieron en tanta publicidad, con otras muchas que dellas se ocassionaron, que bien 5 no la dicha Maria de Çamora a quedar en todo el pueblo infamada de muger que sabia hacer polvos y dar hechizos y hazerlos y de saber ligar con cabellos y poluos y de que se vntaba y hazia ausençia de su casa a dessora y de que tenia pleito con el demonio y se subia en un cabron. De todo esto bino la pobre muger a quedar imfamada, no pudiendose averiguar que antes de la dicha pendençia hubiese contra la dicha Maria de Çamora rumor 10 de alguna destas cosas. El testigo que contra ella se hallo fue una hija sua pero muger del yerno con quien auia auido la pendencia, por cuyas manos se dixo que la suegra lo queria matar. No se pudo hallar otro testigo ni de los citados se pudo sacar palabra en razon desto. Verdad es que no se les amenazo ni parecio cosa conbeniente amenazarlos ni apremiarlos con castigo o tormento porque jurassen, por ser ellos 15 tales que era muy facil de creer que el castigo o temor del les haria facilmente jurar lo que no sabian y assi viendo la poca comodidad de probanca y de que la verdad se aberiguasse y conociendo quan facilmente en ese santo tribunal se auerigua y delata aun lo muy occulto, acorde de remitir a Vuestras Señorias la causa. El proçesso della lleba el padre fray Lazaro Ximenez, predicador que ba desta tierra a negociar y pedir el 20 remedio della al señor birrey de la Nueba España. El yerno de la dicha Maria de Çamora sale desta tierra al presente y dexa dadas fianças de que presentara a su muger en ese santo tribunal cada y quando que le fuere mandado que es la hija de la dicha Maria de Çamora y testigo en la causa contra su madre. en casa de Maria muger de Francisco Lopez bido que la dicha Maria tenia unos elotes coçidos blancos y colorados y escojio dos elotes colorados y saco de vna cajuela vnos poluos colorados y los echo 20 en los elotes y los rrefrego contra los poluos y los dio a Francisco de Niebes y tomo otros dos elotes colorados y ansimismo les echo de los poluos y se los dio a Pedro Luçero y bido qu'el dicho Niebes comio los elotes y esta testigo 25 pregunto a la dicha Maria para que eran aquellos polbos y le rrespondio "para amartelar a estos putos" y otro dia estando esta testigo en ca-

En este dicho dia para aueriguacion de esta causa el dicho padre comisario mando parecer ante si a Lucia de [Ca]mora muger del dicho Diego Robledo, de la qual fue tomado y recibido juramento en forma de derecho por Dios y vna cruz † 5 que hiço con los dedos de su mano derecha y prometio de decir verdad y preguntada por esta causa dijo que puede auer mes y medio poco mas o menos que Maria de Çamora madre de esta testigo riño con Diego Robledo marido de esta testigo y antes desto la dicha su ma-10 dre desta testigo le enbio vnos poluos con Diego hermano desta testigo y le enbio a decir con vna yndia que le sirbe que aquellos poluos heran para que se los hechase al dicho Diego Robledo en las espaldas y en los çapa-tos para que muriese con ellos y despues de algu-15 nos dias suçedio que los dichos poluos le hallaron a esta testigo y se los tomaron de la manga de la tunica donde los traia en vn papel y luego esta testigo se lo enbio a decir a la dicha su madre con Juana hermana desta testigo y luego la dicha su madre le enbio con el dicho Diego 20 su hermano otros poluos, los quales guardo esta testigo y el dicho Diego Robledo su marido fue al pueblo de Pujuaque donde hallo al dicho Diego hermano desta testigo y segun le dijo el dicho su marido preguntó al dicho Diego que le dije-se la uerdad de la manera que bido sido lo de 25 los poluos y el dicho su hermano le dijo que su madre se los auia dado (^por) para que los diese a esta testigo y que demas de los primeros le auia dado otros poluos al dicho Diego para que los diese a esta testigo y benjdo a su casa el dicho Diego Robledo preguntó a es-30 ta testigo por estos segundos poluos y esta testigo los saco y se los dio y que estos segundos poluos ansimesmo le enbio a decir su madre que aquellos eran para que se hinchase el dicho [fol. 347r]

Diego Robledo su marido dandoseles en el agua y la dicha yndia que trujo los primeros trujo los segundos y dijo a esta testigo que con ellos se hincharia y se le atajaria la orina y que en los poluos primeros qu'esta testigo a dicho desenboluo el papel en que benian y bido qu'estaba dentro entre los poluos vnas vñas cortadas y y cabellos y vn gargaxo y otro dia que la dicha su madre fue casa desta testigo y estando jun-tas esta testigo y su suegra y la muger del capitán 5 10 15 20 25 30 35 40 Romero y otra moça que se llama Sabina entro rriñendo y dijo a esta testigo “daca los poluos que te di”.
Dos beçes se los pidio y esta testigo le dijo que ya se los auian tomado y quando la otra bez se los pidio diçiendo “daca los poluos que diçen que te di” y arremetio con esta testigo y le enpeço a dar y las qu'es-taban presentes se la quitaron y entonces se salio y al bajar de la escalera a vn muchacho mestiço que se llama Juan le dio vnos pocos de poluos para que los diese a esta testigo y no le dijo el muchacho mas de que se los auia dado su madre desta testigo. / Fuele preguntado por que causa entro su madre riñendo dijo que porque Diego Robledo marido desta testigo abia dicho a su padre que por que queria la dicha Maria de Çamora matarle y con esto fue la dicha su madre a ttreñir con esta testigo y la dicha yndia Maria criada de su madre desta testigo le dijo como antes que rriñieran le auian dado al dicho Diego Robledo en vn jarro de agua unos poluos en casa de la dicha madre desta testigo y mas dijo que los dias pasados (^est) que abra tiempo de año y medio poco mas o menos y bido esta testigo estando su padre en el molino que la dicha su madre se entro vna noche en vn aposento y cerrada la puerta bido esta testigo por las hendeduras della que eran grandes por estar la puerta quebrada, qu'es vn aposen-to que auia, sirbe de despensa a la dicha su madre y tenia vna candela ençendida de sebo y vnas brasas de lumbre en vn tapalcate y desnuda en camisa que solamente tenia sus berguenças tapadas en vn paño bido esta testigo que se vntaba todas las coyunturas como es las manos y co-dos y los onbros y las rrodillas y los dedos de los pies y que el ynguento era como amarillo y

[fol. 347v]

despues de auer puesto este ynguento se unto con otro en las mismas coyunturas que hera negro y saue que eran destas colores porque los auia visto que la dicha su madre los tenia en unos calabaçillos 5 y metidos en vn chicubite que tenia algodon y estaba colgado en el propio aposento y bido esta testigo como despues de vntada se alço vn poco de la tierra y se paro la lunbre de la candela berde y la dicha su madre se desaparecio y luego se apago la candela y esta testigo tubo miedo y se fue acostar con sus hermanos 10 y no la bido mas hasta otro dia que hera de dia qu'esta testigo se lebanto y asimismo a uisto a la dicha su madre beuer el peote muchas beçes y vna dellas esta testigo bebio vn poco de peote pareciendole que seria cosa buena.
15 Labo lo que quedo en el metate y lo bebio antes de poner[se] el sol y esta testigo se salio de casa a jugar y a la noche que se acosto le parece que bia bisiones como onbres armados y pajaros y se le figuro que se auia de casar y otras cosas y por esta cree que la dicha su madre 20 lo bebia para este efecto y le pregunto a la dicha su madre que para que lo bebia y le respondio que porque hera bueno y pidiendole este testigo que le diese vn poco le dijo que no lo bebiese que hera muy chiquita y se bolueria loca y dijo la dicha su 25 madre a esta testigo y a todos sus hermanos como en la Nueva España abia vna muger que se vntaba cada noche y que decia “de biga en biga con yra de Santa Maria” y que la castigaron por ello y ansimismo dijo que a visto a la dicha su madre en el mjsmo aposento 30 donde se vntaba que despues de puesto el sol antes que fuese de noche daba vnos golpes con la mano a puño cerrado que heran cinco golpes que no oyo bien esta testigo las palabras que de-cia mas de que oyo decir “Berçebu” y que con esto 35 bino vn lechonçillo y le dijo la dicha su madre no se que preguntas entre las cuales pregunto que hacian en casa de Ana Ortiz y otra vez bido otro tanto y a la mjsma ora y con las palabras que a declarado y golpes en la pared y bido que bino vn pe-40 rrillo chiquito lanudo negro y le dijo al cochinito que a dicho la primera vez que le daria el dedo del coraçon de la mano yzquierda y quando el perrillo le dijo que le daria el dedo mas pequeño y se lo señalaba y asimismo a bisto tres beçes a la dicha su madre abra vn año poco mas o menos qu'estando su padre en el molino tomo la dicha su madre un lebrillo de agua y ençima del bordo deste lebrillo 5 ponja dos habas y dos (^garbanços)[^maiçes] fronteros vnos de otros y la dicha su madre andaba a la rredonda del lebrillo arrastrandose y diciendo vnas palabras que le parecio a esta testigo que no eran en española lengua y a la postrera palabra entendio esta 10 testigo que decia "la chobera" y a esta palabra saltaban (y) los (^garbanços)[^granos de maiz] dentro del agua, las habas vna tras otra y el maiz caya apartado del lebrillo y luego benia vn animal que le parecio a esta testigo que seria como vn cabron de vn año casi como 15 amarillo que no supo decir la color con la cola rre-tuerta y lebantada sobre el anca y delgada como cola de puerco y se metia en el agua y su madre desta testigo subia ençima y estaba caballera en el dicho animal y en esto esta testigo se yba 20 porque no la biese la dicha su madre y saue esta testigo que auiendo reñido la dicha su madre con su padre porque decia que andaba con otra muger dijo a esta testigo "yo le dare con que no quiera a esta persona" y luego el dicho su padre aporreo a la dicha su madre y esta 25 testigo como bido aporrear a su madre le dijo "señora, ¿por que no le da a mi padre lo que dijo?" y la dicha su madre le tresspondio "ya se lo e dado y lo e ligado" y demas desto dijo que binjendo Ynes criada de Baca yndia de la Nueba España a casa 30 desta testigo y no dejandole hablar con ella dijo la dicha Ynes "¿que se me da a mi que no me dejen ha-blar con Luçia que yo lo se todo, y quando ligaron al capitán Alonso Gomez?", lo qual dijo a Sabina mu-ger de Juan de Lara y esta testigo a oydo decir a la dicha su 35 madre que vna bruja le quiso matar a Juan hermano desta testigo quando hera niño y que otra noche puso a los pies de la cama vna escoba las puntas hacia baxo y vnas tijeras y vnos calçones de honbre bascos a la cabeçera y que con esto no en-40 traria bruja y esta testigo despues que su madre riño con ella por su marido Diego Robledo, temiendose de su madre, yimaginando que quizá es bruja, a puesto la dicha escoba y las tijeras como a dicho

[fol. 348v]

y qu'esto hiço dos noches no mas y qu'esto que tiene dicho es la uerdad y lo que esta testigo saue para el jura-mento que a hecho y se ratifico en ello y dijo que no sabe decir la (^??) edad que tiene; al parecer sera de hedad 5 de doce o trece años y dijo que por ser su madre no a de-jado de decir verdad y no firmo por no sauver. Va tes-

Received 26 November 1607 from New Mexico, Fray Francisco de Escobar Registered 17 December 1607 in this year's ledger

A quarrel that arose in this country between two mothers-in-law or between mothers-in-law and sons-in-law led to a case being brought against María de Zamora in which her son-in-law, her daughter's husband, charged that on several occasions she had attempted to kill him by means of powders. The resulting talk and its further repercussions became so widely known that throughout the village the said María de Zamora acquired the bad reputation of being a woman who knew how to confect powders and cast spells and pronounce them and who knew how to use hair and powders to produce impotence in men and sterility in women,<sup>1</sup> and that at strange times she would disappear from her house, and that she had a pact with the Devil and mounted on a billy goat. All of this left the poor woman with a bad reputation, though no indication could be found that the said María de Zamora had been accused of any of these things before the said quarrel.

The witness who appeared against her was one of her daughters, but she was the wife of the son-in-law with whom she had had the quarrel, and it was said that it was by means of her that the mother-in-law wanted to kill him. No other witness could be found, nor could a word concerning this matter be elicited from those summoned. It is true that they were not threatened, nor did it seem advisable to threaten or press them with punishment or torture to make them testify, because they were the sort of people of whom one could easily believe that punishment or the fear thereof would easily make them swear to what they did not know; and so, seeing the difficulty of obtaining proof and discovering the truth, and knowing how easily even the deepest secrets are found out and revealed in the Holy Tribunal, I decided to send the case to Your Honors.<sup>2</sup> Father Gonzalo Lázaro Jiménez, a preacher who is going from this country to deal with the Viceroy of New Spain and ask him to come to its aid, is carrying the record.

The son-in-law of the said María de Zamora is currently leaving this country and has given guarantees that whenever he might be ordered to do so he will present his wife, who is the daughter of the said María de Zamora and a witness in the case against her mother, before the Holy Tribunal. The mother was also ready to go; and as her husband is very badly needed in this country he was asked on behalf of the governor not to absent himself, because of which it seemed appropriate for the said María de Zamora, his wife, to stay with him, as she had no way of traveling if her husband did not do so, besides which the case that has been brought against her did not seem to me to present evidence sufficient to warrant her being obliged by decree or sentence [fol. 342v] to appear as an accused person before the Holy Tribunal unless summoned by Your Honors, because, the case being as yet unproven, it would be defamatory to oblige her to appear if no evidence was subsequently found against her, and if the allegations against her should be proven she is much more secure here than if she went to New Spain, because there she could flee and hide if she feared something, and here there is no way to do that.

Along with the record of the case I am sending the powders found in the possession of the daughter, by whose hand they say that the said María de Zamora sought to kill her son-in-law; and here there is no way for an expert to tell whether they are deadly. May God grant that the truth be known so that crimes may be punished and His Divine Majesty be served. May He keep Your Honors' illustrious persons in the dignity wished for by this Your Honors' most humble chaplain.

Accusation of witchcraft by Diego Robledo against María de Zamora, his mother-in-law<sup>4</sup>

In the town of San Gabriel in New Mexico, on the 29th day of the month of December of the year 1606, Diego Robledo, residing in this town, appeared before the Reverend Father Fray Francisco de Escobar, general and apostolic commissary of this kingdom, and stated that he would and did accuse María de Zamora, his mother-in-law, before the law. And in explanation of his accusation he stated that more than a month ago, when he found some powder in the possession of Lucía de Zamora, wife of this accuser, and asked her what it was for, she replied that the said María de Zamora, her mother, had given it to her so that with it she might kill the said Diego Robledo by sprinkling it in his shoes and on his back. And after this the said his wife produced some small leaves of a plant and said that her mother had given her those leaves so that she might put them in the water when he was drinking, and they would block the flow of his urine and cause a bellyache, and he would die of this; and she told him that in the said her mother's house they had already given the said Diego Robledo that drink. And he states that thereupon he ordered the said Lucía de Zamora, his wife, not to go to her mother's house or allow any of her brothers or sisters or any other person from her mother's house to enter his house.

<sup>3</sup> hechicera y bruja. To the best of my knowledge, the two terms are synonymous, but only the former is applied to the other two accused.

And in his house this accuser has a boy of about eight called Juan Quelmes, a mestizo. And one night this boy ran away from him, and when he was brought back the next morning and asked why he had run away, he said that it was to avoid being harassed because Diego, the son of the said his mother-in-law, had given him some powder wrapped in a piece of paper to give to the said Lucía de Zamora and some of it had spilled, and the rest is in the wrapping, because the said Diego Robledo did not want to see it. And when he asked the said his wife what sort of wickedness this was, she replied that she knew many other things about her mother, because at her house she had some ointments with [fol. 344v] which she would anoint herself, and she would disappear and go away, and when she came back she had asked the said her mother where she had gone, and she answered her that she went to kiss the hand of a great king, and then afterwards she told her that she had gone to kiss the tail of a billy goat. And [he stated] that the said Lucía de Zamora also told him that she had asked her mother why she was not teaching her those things, and that she had answered that she was too young and would go crazy. And the said his wife has also told him that she has seen her mother fill an earthenware bowl with water and place two beans in it facing each other and two grains of maize,<sup>5</sup> likewise facing each other, and then she would make the sign of the cross over them and say, "From beam to beam," or "From arrow to arrow,"<sup>6</sup> upon which the beans and the grains of maize come together, and an animal with large twisted<sup>7</sup> ears would appear and get under her skirts, and her mother would bestride it, and furthermore that her mother had told her that to keep witches from coming into a house one should set up a broom with the bristles down and a pair of scissors, likewise pointing down. And the said Diego Robledo has seen his wife do this, and when he asked her why she did this she replied that it was to defend herself against her mother. And the said his wife has also told him that her mother has a pact with the Devil.

And the said Diego Robledo asked the said his wife how she knew these things, and she answered him that she has seen the said her mother go into a room and knock on the wall with her hand and say, "Come here, Satan. I promise you this finger," and then there is an answer from inside and a creature appears and she speaks with it and tells it that she wants answers to some questions that she asks of it. And when the said Diego Robledo has told his wife that she should be careful with what she says and not [fol. 345r] bear false witness against her mother, she has often answered that she knows she is her mother and that she is not bearing any false witness because all of it is true. The said Diego Robledo has asked her why she did not confess this when making her confession, and she answered that she has not understood it to be a sin and that is why she has not confessed it.

Against María, wife of Francisco López, for sorcery

And likewise one of these last days Francisca, the wife of Juan de Tapia, told the said Diego Robledo that one day when she was at the house of María, the wife of Francisco López, the said María had told her, "Some young fellows will come to eat this maize; scatter this powder on them," and that the said Francisca had asked her, "Why do you want to kill these young fellows?" and she had replied that the powder was not meant to kill them but to make them fall in love; and that she gave some powder to the said Francisca that she said she should give her husband and they would make him go blind and she could find a way to live—because she was poor—and do better. And [he stated] that the said Francisca told him that she had thrown it away, and that the said María had also told the said Francisca that the powder had been given to her by Francisco, the son of the said María de Zamora.

<sup>7</sup> tuertas: This adjective is usually applied to the eyes; I am conjecturing as to its meaning here.

Against Ana Ortiz, a witch

And a servant of Cristóbal Baca's wife, called Inés, told Catalina López, the said Diego Robledo's mother, that they should summon her and she would tell how the said María de Zamora and the said Cristóbal Baca's wife, whose name is Ana Ortiz, had made Captain Alonso Gómez impotent.

And he said that he is declaring what he has said in order to unburden his conscience and so that such crimes might be punished. And first he swore by God and by a cross † as required by law, and he signed his name.

For the investigation of this case the said father commissary immediately ordered [fol. 345v] an investigation of the persons named in the said accusation, along with such others as may be named, and this was done in the following manner:

On this said day the said father commissary, in order to investigate this case, ordered that the said Lucía de Zamora be lodged in the house of Captain Alonso Gómez's wife, that being a respectable house and above suspicion, and she was so lodged, to which I, the said secretary, attest.

On this said day, the 29th day of December, the said father commissary, in order to investigate this case, ordered Francisca Robledo, the wife of Juan de Tapia, to appear before him and placed her under oath by God and a cross + as required by law; and upon being questioned about the accusation, she said that the fact and what she knows is that more or less some four months ago, while this witness was at the house of María, the wife of Francisco López, she saw that the said María had some cooked ears of maize, white and red, and she chose two red ears and took some red powder from a little box and strewed it on these ears and rubbed them in the powder and gave them to Francisco de Nieves, and she took two other red ears and likewise spread some powder on them and gave them to Pedro Lucero, and she saw that the said Nieves ate the maize; and this witness asked the said María what that powder was for, and she answered, "To make these buggers fall in love."

And another day, when this witness was at the said María's house, she produced a small piece of a yellow root and gave it to this witness and told her that [fol. 346r] Juan de Medina's crazy Indian woman had given it to her, and said that she should take it to whomever she wished or to her husband, to make him love her; and this witness promptly threw it away. And [she declared] that the said María told this witness that Francisco, the son of Montoya and María de Zamora, had given her the powder that she had scattered on the maize. And another day this witness saw that the said María asked the said Francisco, son of the said María de Zamora, "Ah, Francisco, is there some of that?" and the said Francisco told her that there was not, but that he would see whether some could be found. And afterwards the said María told her that the said Francisco had given powder to her, and this witness asked her where he got it to give her, and she said that the Indians of Cuyamongue gave them to him.

And the said María also told this witness that she had given Pedro Lucero some eggs fried with the said root; and when the said María asked this witness what she had done with the root she had given her, she told her that she had kept it, and she offered her another one and told her to take it and cook it and, once it was cooked, to put it on a plate and serve it. And she also told her to wash her armpits and pudenda—or that she washed them, because she does not remember which it was—and use the water for cooking so that she would be loved; and when this witness asked her whether this was some kind of witchcraft, she replied that it was not and that down in Mexico they did that and other low tricks and they burned those who did it and those who saw it, and so she should not say anything because he would love her more. And this witness told her, "Montoya's son does not confess this, and it was the father who gave it to you."<sup>8</sup> And she replied that Montoya's son had told her that he could not get absolution and that she was ordered to do much penance; and [she said] that this witness should not reveal it because they would burn me [sic] and that [fol. 346v] she was telling her this because she was fond of her.

And this her testimony is the truth and what she knows under the oath she has taken, and she ratifies it, and she said that she is about eighteen years old. She did not sign because she does not know how.

On this said day, in order to investigate this case, the said father commissary ordered Lucía de Zamora, wife of the said Diego Robledo, to appear before him, whom he placed under oath by God and a cross + that she made with the fingers of her right hand, and she promised to testify the truth; and upon being asked about this case she stated that about a month and a half ago, more or less, María de Zamora, mother of this witness, quarreled with Diego Robledo, husband of this witness; and before this the said mother of this witness sent her some powder with Diego, brother of this witness, and sent her word by an Indian woman in her service that that powder was for her to sprinkle on the back and in the shoes of the said Diego Robledo so that they might cause his death. And after a few days this powder was found on this witness and taken from the sleeve of the tunic<sup>9</sup> where she kept them wrapped in a piece of paper, and this witness then sent word of this to the said her mother with Juana, sister of this witness, and then the said her mother sent her more powder with the said Diego, her brother, which powder this witness kept.

And the said Diego Robledo, her husband, went to the village of Pujuaque, where he found the said Diego, brother of this witness, and according to what the said her husband told her he asked the said Diego to tell him the truth about how he came to possess<sup>10</sup> the powder, and the said her brother told him that his mother had given it to him to give to this witness, and that in addition to the first powder she had given another to the said Diego to give to this witness. And when he came home the said Diego Robledo asked this witness about this second powder, and this witness took it out and gave it to him. And concerning this second powder her mother also sent word that it was intended to make the said Diego Robledo, her husband, swell up [fol. 347r] when she gave it to him in water. And the same Indian who brought the first powder brought the second and told this witness that it would make him swell up and he would be unable to urinate. And with the first powder that this witness had mentioned she opened the paper in which it was wrapped and saw that inside it, with the powder, there were nail trimmings and hair and sputum.

And another day when the said her mother went to the house of this witness, where this witness was with her mother-in-law and Captain Romero's wife and another young woman called Sabina, she arrived in a pet and told this witness, "Give me the powder I gave you!" Twice she asked for it, and this witness told her that it had already been taken, and when she again asked her for it, saying, "Give me the powder they say I gave you!", she assailed this witness and began to hit her, and the other women present pulled her away, and then she went out. And when she had gone down the stairs she gave a mestizo boy called Juan a little powder to give to this witness, and the only thing the boy told this witness was that her mother had given it to him. She was asked why her mother had arrived in a pet, and she said that it was because Diego Robledo, the husband of this witness, had asked her father why the said María de Zamora wanted to kill him, and that made the said her mother go to quarrel with this witness. And the said Indian María, the servant of this witness's mother, told her that before they had quarreled they had given the said Diego Robledo some powder in a jar of water at the house of the mother of this witness.

And she further stated that earlier, maybe about a year and a half ago, when her father was at the mill, this witness saw that one night the said her mother went into a room, and after she closed the door this witness saw her mother through the cracks in the door of the room that is the pantry—because the door is damaged—, and she had a burning tallow candle and some embers in an earthenware pot, and she was half naked with only a cloth around her waist, and this witness saw that she was anointing all her joints—her hands and elbows and shoulders and knees and toes—and the ointment was kind of yellow. [fol. 347v] After applying this ointment she anointed herself on the same joints with another that was black; and she knows that these were their colors because she had seen that the said her mother kept them in some little gourds inside a basket with cotton hanging in the same room. And this witness saw that after she had anointed herself she rose a little from the ground and the flame from the green candle froze and the said her mother disappeared and then the candle went out, and this witness was afraid and went to where her brothers and sisters were sleeping. And she did not see her again until the next day in the morning when this witness got up.

And she has likewise seen the said her mother drink peyote many times; and one of these times this witness drank a little peyote, thinking it might be something good. She rinsed out what was left on the grinding stone and drank it before sunset, and this witness left the house to play; and that night when she went to bed it seemed as though she was seeing visions like armed men and birds and she imagined she would get married and other things, and that is why she thinks her mother drank it for this purpose. And she asked the said her mother why she drank it, and she answered because it was good, and when this witness asked her to give her a little she told her not to drink it, that she was too young and would go crazy.

And the said her mother told this witness and all her brothers and sisters that in New Spain there was a woman who anointed herself every night and said, "From beam to beam with St. Mary's wrath,"<sup>11</sup> and she was punished for it.

And she also declared that after sunset and before nightfall she has seen the said her mother strike five blows with her fist in the same room where she anointed herself. And this witness could not quite hear the words she was saying except that she heard her say "Beelzebub," whereupon a piglet appeared and the said her mother asked it some questions—she does not know what—and among these questions [she asked] what they were doing in Ana Ortiz's house. And she saw the same thing on another occasion and at the same hour and with the words she has stated and the blows against the wall, and she saw that a woolly little black dog appeared. And to the piglet she mentioned, on the first occasion, she said that she would give it the middle finger of her left hand, and to the little dog she said that she would give it the little finger, [fol. 348r] and she pointed to it.

And about a year ago she has also three times seen the said her mother, while her father was at the mill, take an earthenware pot with water, and on the rim of this pot she placed two beans and two grains of maize facing each other, and the said her mother crawled around the pot saying some words that did not seem to this witness to be in the Spanish language, and the last word that this witness heard was "la chobera."<sup>12</sup> And at this word the grains of maize jumped into the water, as did the beans one after another, and the maize<sup>13</sup> fell away from the pot, and then an animal appeared that to this witness seemed something like a year-old billy goat, sort of like yellow, she could not quite say what color, with a twisted tail lifted up over a haunch like a pig's tail, and it got into the water and this witness's mother mounted it and sat astride the said animal. And at this point this witness left so that the said her mother would not see her.

And this witness knows that when the said her mother had quarreled with her father because she said he was keeping company with another woman, she told this witness, "I'll give him something so that he won't love this person," and then the said her father beat the said her mother; and when this witness saw her mother being beaten, <sup>12</sup> I do not know the meaning of this word, and Prof. Jerry R. Craddock tells me that he has not found it in any dictionary.

she asked her, "Why don't you give my father what you said, ma'am?" And the said her mother replied, "I've already given it to him and made him impotent." And furthermore she stated that when Inés, Baca's Indian servant from New Spain, came to this witness's house and was not allowed to speak with her, the said Inés said, "What do I care if they don't let me speak with Lucía, because I know it all, and when Captain Alonso Gómez was made impotent." And she said this to Sabina, Juan de Lara's wife.

And this witness has heard the said her mother say that a witch tried to kill Juan, this witness's brother, when he was a child, and that the next night she placed a broom with the bristles down at the foot of the bed, and at the head a pair of scissors and a man's dirty<sup>14</sup> pants, and that way no witch would come in. And after her mother quarreled with her about her husband, Diego Robledo, this witness, fearing her mother and thinking that she may be a witch, has placed the said broom and the scissors as she has said; [fol. 348v] and she did this only two nights.

And [she declared] that this her testimony is the truth and what this witness knows, under the oath she has taken, and she ratified it and said that she cannot state her age—she seems to be about twelve or thirteen years old—and she said that her being her mother did not keep her from telling the truth. And she did not sign because she does not know how. The said commissary signed it.

On this said day the said father commissary went to the house of Bartolomé de Montoya, husband of the said María de Zamora, and took the said Lucía de Zamora with him so that she might show him the room where she says that her mother was doing what she has testified to, so that he might see for himself whether, with the door closed, one could see what was being done in the room. And the room indicated by the said Lucía de Zamora was found to be without a door, and no such door was found anywhere in the house.

Immediately thereupon on this same day the said father commissary ordered that Diego Robledo be instructed to bring and forthwith to deliver to the said father commissary the powders that he says he has, and I, the said secretary, so instructed him. And he brought them and delivered them to the said father commissary in my presence, to which I attest, which powders are three small bundles wrapped in some small pieces of paper, and the powders are in very small quantity, and they remained in the custody of the said father commissary.

In the town of San Gabriel on the 30th day of December of the said year, the said father commissary caused to appear before him an Indian servant of the said María de Zamora and placed her under oath as required by law. And when questioned with regard to this case and its opening statement of charges, she stated that her name is María and that she is of the Otomí people, though she cannot say which is her home village, and that since she was a little girl she has been with the said María de Zamora, her mistress. She could not state her age and seems to be over 16, and she knows Spanish. And she was asked many questions about what has been written above, omitting nothing; and to all of them she replied that she neither knows nor has seen anything. And she did not sign because she does not know how. The said father commissary signed.

On the aforesaid day, month, and year the said commissary caused to appear before him Inés, an Indian who said that she is a native of Toluca and who is a servant of Ana Ortiz, the wife of Captain Cristóbal Baca, and placed her under oath as required by law; and under this oath she was asked many questions concerning what has been written, and to all of them she replied that she knew nothing and had neither seen nor heard it. And this she replied in Spanish, which she knows very well. She could not state her age and seems to be some 15 years old. She did not sign because she does not know how.

On the last day of the month of December of the said year the said father commissary, in order better to discover the truth in this case and because all of this town knows about it, on Sunday, the said last day of the month, pronounced an excommunication from the altar compelling all persons [fol. 349v] who might know whether there are in this town persons who are witches, sorcerers, or enchanters or who make men impotent or do other such things, to come forward to declare and testify to it. And thereupon, under the threat of excommunication, the said Lucía de Zamora appeared before the said father commissary and stated under oath administered by me, the said secretary, that the said María de Zamora, her mother, used to place some small balls, black on the outside and white within, on her face and breasts after chewing them, and that this witness asked her why she did this, and she told her so that all the men would love her and come to her, and she told this witness to apply them to herself and all the men would love her; and she, being a young girl and not knowing what she was doing, applied them to her face three times. And she stated that this is the truth under the oath she has taken, and she ratified it.

On this said 2nd day of January of the year 1607, with respect to the said excommunication, Juan Pérez, a soldier, came to declare that about a year ago he saw Francisco de Montoya, son of the said María de Zamora, holding a small root in his hands; and this witness asked him what it was for, and the said Francisco de Montoya answered him that it was for getting women and that an Indian had given it to him. And this he declared under oath administered by me, the secretary, and he is 29 years old and signed his name.

Confession by María de Zamora

In the town of San Gabriel, on the 4th day of the month of January of the year 1607, the said father commissary ordered that María de Zamora, wife of Bartolomé de Montoya, appear before him so that he might receive her confession, and she was placed under oath as required by law, and she swore and promised to declare the truth, and she was asked the following questions:

When asked for her name, age, and home town, she stated that her name is María de Zamora and that she is the wife of Bartolomé de Montoya, that she is 33 years old and a native of Mexico City and was born in the San Sebastián district near the San Sebastián canal.

She was asked where she has lived outside Mexico, and who her parents were. She replied that she is the daughter of Pedro de Zamora, a native of Mexico who lived by the said canal in the said district, and her mother's name is Agustina Abarca. And she said that the said her father went to be mayor of Oaxaca when this confessor was seven years old, and from there they took her to the village of Tezcuco, where she was raised and married off, and from the said village of Tezcuco, where she lived in the San Lorenzo district, her husband brought her to this kingdom.

She was asked to state and declare whether it is true that on several occasions this confessor sent some powders to Lucía de Zamora, her daughter, wife of Diego Robledo, with an Indian servant of this confessor so that she might sprinkle them on his feet and back and mix them into the said Diego Robledo's water so that he would die. She replied that she denies this because no such thing happened, nor does she know anything about powders or any such things.

When asked whether it is true that a year and a half ago this confessor went into a room of her house, the last one, on some nights and by the light of a candle and some embers anointed all the joints of her feet and hands and shoulders and other parts, and after she had done this she disappeared and the candle went out, she stated that she denies it because no such thing happened.

When asked whether it is true that this confessor is in the habit of drinking peyote and for what purpose she drinks it, she stated that it is true that [fol. 350v] when she came to this country she brought a string of peyote that was given to this confessor by a woman called Doña Isabel, the wife of a certain Rodríguez, and that she has used it with some persons, putting it into their poultices and enemas, and that she has neither drunk it nor given it to anyone to drink. This is her reply.

When asked whether it is true that this witness told the said her daughter and other persons that in New Spain there was a woman who anointed herself every night and said "From beam to beam it goes with St. Mary's wrath,"<sup>15</sup> she stated that it is true that she told this to her daughter and other persons and her other children because in Mexico she had heard that the woman who said this had appeared in an auto-da-fé, and that she told this by chance, and as though telling a story.

When asked whether it is true that on some nights, in the same room where she anointed herself, this confessor knocked five times on the wall of the said room with her fist and pronounced some words, the last of which named Beelzebub, and a suckling pig came out, and other times a little dog, and that she spoke with them, and so that they would answer her questions she would at times pledge them her middle finger and at others her little finger, she replied that she knows nothing about what she is being asked.

When asked whether it is true that more or less a year ago, while this confessor's husband was at the town mill grinding the residents' wheat, she would take a bowl of water and place two beans and two grains of maize on the rim facing each other, and while crouching down would proceed around the bowl and speak certain words, and the said beans and grains would come together, and that an animal like a billy goat would appear and this confessor would mount him, she replied that she denies it, because no such thing happened.

When asked whether it is true that, having quarreled with her husband out of jealousy over a woman of this town, this confessor told her daughter that she would give him something to make him forget about other women and not love another woman, and that afterwards her daughter asked her whether she had given it to him and she said that it had been done, she stated that she denies it because no such thing happened.

[fol. 351r] When asked whether it is true that this confessor told the said her daughter that to keep witches from coming in to do harm it was good to place scissors under the pillow and a broom with the bristles down, she stated that the fact is that in the house of Ana Ortiz this confessor said that women in Spain said this that she is being asked about, and that when a son of hers called Francisco was a little boy this confessor placed a broom with the bristles up at the foot of his cradle, pointing toward the head, and that she did this twice and did so because she had heard about it, as she has said. And this is her reply.

When asked whether it is true that, to make men love her and grow fond of her, this confessor would sometimes take some small balls, black on the outside and white within, chew them in her mouth and then smear them on her breasts and face, and that she told her daughter to do the same, she replied that she knows nothing about what she is being asked about, because no such thing has happened.

She was asked many other questions having to do with the case, and she replied that she knows nothing but what she has declared, which is the truth under the oath she has taken, and she ratified it. And she did not sign because she said that she does not know how.

Confession of Diego, son of Bartolomé de Montoya

On this said day the said father commissary ordered to appear before him a boy called Diego, the son of Bartolomé de Montoya and María de Zamora, and because he was so little and could not state his age, he was not placed under oath. He seems to be about nine years old. He was asked what powder the said his mother gave him to take to his sister Lucía de Zamora to kill her husband and what he had gone to tell her about other powders, and to everything he replied that he knew nothing and that what he was being asked about had not happened, and that this and nothing else is the truth and the facts. [fol. 351v] And he denied everything else he was asked and stated that he knew nothing. He did not sign because he does not know how.

In the town of San Gabriel in New Mexico, on the 4th day of January of the year 1607, the Reverend Father Fray Francisco de Escobar, apostolic commissary and commissary of this kingdom, having examined this case and seeing that, despite the threat of major excommunication and other measures taken, it has been impossible to determine anything beyond what is here written, stated that in order for the most appropriate decision to be made he was forwarding it to the inquisitors in the City of Mexico so that before their holy tribunal, where nothing can remain hidden, the truth of the matter may be discovered. And he signed.

In the town of San Gabriel on the 5th day of the month of March of the year 1607 the Reverend Father Fray Francisco de Escobar, the aforesaid commissary in this kingdom of New Mexico, stated that it has come to his knowledge that María de Zamora, wife of Bartolomé de Montoya, has again, on several occasions, sent powders to her daughter Lucía de Zamora, wife of Diego Robledo, so that by means of them she might kill him; and in order to discover the truth and so that the inquisitors in the city of Mexico to whom he has sent this case may decide what is best about everything, he ordered that confession be again received from the said Lucía de Zamora to find out what are the facts in the case and whether there are witnesses whose testimony might shed more light on the case. And he signed.

Confession of Lucía de Zamora

In the town of San Gabriel in New Mexico, on the 5th day of the month of March of the said year, the said father commissary, for purposes of the said investigation, caused to appear before him Lucía de Zamora, wife of Diego Robledo, who was placed under oath by God and a cross ✕ as required by law, and she swore and promised to tell the truth.

And when asked to state and declare what she might know about this case, and when informed of the appropriate requirements that she declare whether she has been coerced by anyone, she stated that the fact is that on various occasions and days after her mother, María de Zamora, went to live in the village of Cuyamongue, which is four leagues from this town, she has six times sent her, with Diego, this confessor's brother, about ten years old, and the son of the said her mother, some powders wrapped in small pieces of linen and has sent her word to mix them into the water and food of the said her husband Diego Robledo so that they might kill him, and that she sent her two little packets of powders so that she might likewise give them to Doña Lucía, wife of Captain Bartolomé Romero and sister of the said Diego Robledo; and that this is the truth.

She was asked before which persons the said her brother Diego gave her the said powders and where and at what time. She said that sometimes he gave them to her when she was by herself at the corral gate, and other times in the hallway, and it was always in the daytime, and no one saw it.

She was asked why, since she knew that the said powders were intended to kill her husband and her sister-in-law, she received them. She stated that she did so and took them only to please the said her mother and not in order to do anything bad with them, and so she immediately handed them to her mother-in-law, the mother of the said Diego Robledo, her husband. And at this point the said father commissary asked the said her mother-in-law for the said powders, and she produced them wrapped in a small piece of cloth, and each of them in a small cloth package, a small amount in each one, smaller than a hazelnut in each one; and the said father commissary kept them and took them with him and warned the said Lucía de Zamora that on no account should she again receive powders or anything else from the said her mother for the purpose of doing any harm, warning her that he would inflict exemplary punishment on her.

She was asked whether she knows how to make the powders that she says her mother [fol. 352v] has sent her. She stated that she knows how to make them because her mother has taught her, and that they are made from a plant found in the village where the said her mother lives—from its root—and from the leaves of a small tree that grows in the said village, everything dried in the sun and ground up, but that she has not prepared them.

And this is the truth and the facts under the said oath, and she confirms it, and she did not sign because she did not know how, and she is a little over twelve years old.

On this said 5th day of March of the said year the said father commissary, having examined this case, and pending its being heard by the inquisitors to whom it has been forwarded, ordered that Governor Don Juan de Oñate be apprised of it so that he may for no reason permit the said María de Zamora or Diego Robledo or Lucía de Zamora, his wife, to leave this kingdom for New Spain or any other place without orders from him; and he requests and charges the said governor that in order to avoid possible harm he order the said María de Zamora and the said Bartolomé de Montoya and their children not to come into this town as long as this case is pending, because this is conducive to the service of Our Lord God and His Majesty. And he signed.

In the town of San Gabriel in New Mexico, on the 23rd day of the month of August of the year 1607, in the presence of myself, Juan Gutiérrez Bocanegra, secretary of state of this kingdom, and of the witnesses to this letter, there appeared Diego Robledo, whom I, the secretary, certify that I know, and stated that since the Reverend Father Fray Francisco de Escobar, apostolic commissary, has instituted certain proceedings against María de Zamora, wife of Bartolomé de Montoya, and forwarded them to the inquisitors in the City of Mexico, and Lucía de Zamora, wife of the said Diego Robledo, was a witness in this case, should the said inquisitors order the said Lucía de Zamora to appear in Mexico or elsewhere to repeat her testimony or amend it or for anything else, the said Lucía de Zamora will be available, and he will keep her in a place where the said inquisitors may command her as they may see fit, because he is now leaving this kingdom for New Spain with the said his wife, and as guarantor of his acting in keeping with his declaration he named Marcos García, who is also going to New Spain and whom I certify that I know, and both of them pledged their persons and their possessions. They empowered His Majesty's judicial authorities, wherever they may be; they renounced the laws favoring them so that they may be compelled to comply with the above as though by virtue of a sentence pronounced upon trial, and they also renounced the general law.

And the said Diego Robledo signed his name, and a witness signed for the said Marcos García because he said that he does not know how, and the witnesses were Hernán Martín and Hernando de Ocaña and Father Fray Alonso de San Juan.

Jesús dice verdades que ta confessan. se dijo al Padre Justo que para que debes besar tu entraña en la iglesia dices erabuelo con la uina en la boca la comen tal cada tanto, una tigreal debajo del almojarin dices que esas que das son que ta confessante dices tu casa de ana vatis a tu amado que esas mujeres que vienen con tu casa lo que dice Jesús que esas confessante den a tu amigo que no te pague que le amaras sus uinas en la boca comen tal cosa arri bala a la iglesia a una uina a la cera y que no te pague que esas mujeres que vienen con tu casa lo que dice Jesús que esas

Jesús dice verdades que ta confessante para que la que das en la iglesia a la iglesia a la uina uinas con uina en los titulos negras prepara blanco y dor dentro mas candela la cera una taza de la iglesia cara dices que esas que dice tu tanto dices que vienen con tu casa que dice Jesús que vienen con tu casa tal

Jesús dice que vienes con tu casa por tener dentes y dices que vienes con tu casa mas de los que vienes y que esas dices que vienes que tiene fe, de tu rija muerte y no vienes por que te quedas vienes

Jesús dice que vienes con tu casa

Sí se que en el año de 1580 que estuve en la sumisión de los enemigos que se acerco de Mazarca y que también son debidos a la exaltación de la religión y de la justicia de un sacerdote que quería que se necesitara su defensa y que no se le quisiera dejarlo y que todo lo que se pague a Mazarca deberá ser suyo y esto es una creencia que no tiene fundación alguna y que no es de la ley.

En este dia a uno de marzo de 1580 se decomisaron a mi indumentaria y para que se le diera que se llevase a la señoría y que si diera a quién me tuviera mala fe que se dejase a él como gobernador don Juan de Gómez o de que en ninguna causa delincuencia a la señora de Camargo o a su descendencia sucediera de mayor que se gan de este modo para amueblar a Ana niña o trapu-te sin fuerza y sin causas de gobernador o regente de más que se diera a la señora de Camargo moralidad basado en medida de su hija ya que se que tenía suerte de portar de tal modo que se tuviera bien respeto dentro por que así con fuerza se hiciera que se haga de su hija lo mismo.
