Disability Symposium 2013

Panels

The Intersections of the IDEA and the School-to-Prison Pipeline

Friday, March 22, 2013, 11:00 A.M. - 12:30 P.M.

Moderator:

- Professor Jyoti Nanda \(UCLA Law\)

This panel will focus on the disproportionate funneling of students with disabilities into the criminal justice system, in particular students of color and of lower socioeconomic status. Panelists will discuss why this phenomenon-known as the School-to-Prison Pipeline-occurs, and will explore how including disability laws in the School-to-Prison Pipeline discourse will help the education reform debate. They will also discuss litigation strategies and related interventions, such as parent training.

Transition Interrupted: Using the IDEA to Prevent the Transition to the Criminal Justice System

Panelists:

- Julie Waterstone \(Southwestern Law School\)
- Yael Cannon \(University of New Mexico School of Law\)

The School-to-Prison Pipeline: The Adverse Transition For Students of Color with Disabilities

Panelists:

- Anna Rivera \(Disability Rights Legal Center\)
- Kunti Dudakia \(Disability Rights Legal Center\)
