

UC Berkeley

Recent Work

Title

Makes Me Wanna Holler

Permalink

<https://escholarship.org/uc/item/7pp514xf>

Author

Posey, Mahlia

Publication Date

2017-04-01

Video

Audio

Drone shot of San Francisco Capitol Building Drone shot of San Francisco traffic Shot of Ella Baker Center mural Shot of kid playing in the park Memorial of someone who died	Instrumental "Inner City Blues" by Marvin Gaye playing
Drone descends on McAllister Street condos	Mattie Scott: MS: We have lost more people to gun violence on the street than we did in the Iraq war. Just about every corner in the area, a young man or young woman lost their life to gun violence. Just about every corner.
Mattie Interview Shot	That's we ask where is our homeland security. Where is it? Where is it?
Title card "Makes me want to holler"	Working Title about Gun Violence and Public Health
Interview shot of Mattie	Archival footage or pictures of Mattie and her son
Home video of Mattie and her son interacting	MS: [00:06:59] My son. Was murdered. He was at a graduation party...They begin an argument and a party and my son bought them outside to try to resolve it. He was always a peacemaker and he always thought that you could handle things by just talking about it. You know that's the way I brought him up...And it escalated. And the other young man pulled a gun. And shot my son five times.

Shot of Lynn driving.	LW: I'm taking you to the place where they guy who actually killed my daughter, where they used to hang out. Right here on this corner, Kirkwood and Mendell, this was the corner in which the guy who killed my daughter would stand and was kind of like the lead person. But unfortunately, a lot of the young men who stood here are either deceased or incarcerated.
Establishing Shot of SF Medical Emergency sign	NAT SOUND of Ambulance siren
	Dr. Fahimi [00:35:40]: There would be night shifts that were 8 hours long. There would be night shifts where we would see 5 to ten gun victims on one shift. [00:36:00]
	Dr. Fahimi: So if somebody says they smoke. I know the effects of smoking on health...I can offer them resources to help them stop smoking. But when it comes to gun violence. I feel like a lot of time physicians at the bedside don't really know what to do with that information.
Mattie driving in her car	MS: This is our community. This is Buchanan Mall that we're about to hit. My son was killed right there--oh parking space!
Mattie showing the bush where her son died	NAT SOUND of mattie saying this is where my son was murdered

Pan drone shot of the apartment complex and detail shots of the area	MS: [00:12:48] It was a hot July night. It was eleven thirty at night. And so many people saw what happened. No one ever came forward to say who did it. No one. And that hurt. That really hurt.
Interview shot of Mattie	MS: [00:23:26] So there was no services. There was nothing here for us as women who'd lost children gun violence. I seen everything for domestic violence. But I see nothing for us. And at that time give us 96 homicides that year in San Francisco. My son was number 53.
Mattie going through her book of headlines	MS: I felt like I was robbed. Robbed of so many things you know. And then robbed particularly of services. Services from a system where I was paying taxes and got no services and got no help. Got no support. [00:24:35]
Lynn on camera, nat sot with Waringa	WK: What's the youngest victim that you've had? LW: A couple of months, I'll just say under a couple of months.
Lynn pulls out the box underneath her desk	NAT SOUND of box hitting the ground TEXT: Lynn Westry of the San Francisco Department of Public Health started CRISIS to help mothers like Mattie.
Lynn pulls out old pictures of her daughter	LW: My poor little box...She is the reason for the work that I do. This is my daughter Shinika Westry, she was killed Sept. 7, 1998, my oldest daughter was 18.

Scene with Lynn pulling out all the obituaries in her office and spreading them on the floor	LW: [00:00:47] I'm showing you some of the obituaries of some of the different families that I've worked with over the years [00:00:55] and just an enormous amount of young people that have just have been taken away by um as a result of violence in the community [00:01:10] and I really would like it to be known that these are brothers, sons, daughters, fathers, mothers, that have been taken from our community [00:01:29]
Lynn Westry looking at obituaries	[00:02:00] Waringa Kamau: and how many people have you helped? [00:02:04] LW: Oh my God, probably over 1,000.
Close up on obits	[00:03:37] LW: It really saddens me. [00:04:27] I mean do you know the potential, just in this—and this is just a small 4:32 factor right here of obituaries and I never thought that I would be one to kind of collect obituaries, but this is the story. [00:04:44]
Cutaways to Lynn's office	I look at this violence as a health issue and I think until we really start addressing it as a health issue [00:01:17] [00:01:00]We can't really heal like we need to, because we know that when violence happens it brings on a lot of other things
Shots of capital, protesters chanting, marching	"Who speaks, survivors speak!" "We want change now, I said we want change now"
EXT shot of CA State Capitol Hear protesters in the background People settling into the healing circle Show crowd holding up signs	Music in background...Mattie and Lynn meet. Serenity prayer. God, grant me the serenity...In Jesus name Amen.

Cut to sign of healing tent healing tent Banners on healing tent wall Crowd listening, praying
Latrice interview shot	My name is Latrice. I'm from San Francisco, I lost my first born son in 2012. I lost my second one in 2013....and I lost my husband in January 2017. This is my first time being here, this is the first time in 5 years asking for help. I'm very nervous because of the pain that's going through my heart, but I'm ok and I'm glad to be here and I need here because I'm so fucking angry. I'm angry as fuck right now. And I don't wanna go back to Hunter's point, I really don't. I just wish I could stay out here, not with all this heat though. I just wanna thank everybody for coming and thank Lynn and Mattie for even thinking about me.
Hear her speak Cuttaway to crowd laying hands on a mother or shot where people hug each other	Mom #2, Liz Torres: My son, Francisco....I have peace in my heart.
Lynn speaking at the healing circle	[8:07] LW: I want you to know, I work for the department of public health. I go to the crime scene. I'm there when a mother is screaming, I'm there to embrace that mother to walk that mother through. [8:28], I can turn my head and drop a tear, because I know that pain first hand... because I work with a team, because we do 51-50's for adults, kids, suicides, homicides, suicides, you name it. If it's a crisis we respond. [9:14] it's non ending.

	I want you guys to know that I'm shedding tears, but I'm shedding tears for all of us here today, because I am a survivor and that is my testimony.
Mattie hyping up the crowd at the Survivor Speaks March Mattie leading the march and marchers chanting Cut away to people looking down on them in the building Back to marchers walking down the sidewalk Mattie Interview	MS: Everybody should be up in arms about this. This is an epidemic. It's an epidemic and a disease. And it should be treated like the disease that it is.
Dr. Fahimi Interview Shot Nurses wheeling carts Nurses looking at heart beating	Dr. Fahimi: [00:17:41] I don't see how guns are not a public health issue. I mean we make public health issues out of everything. Out of seatbelts, and helmets and how to properly secure your swimming pool. You name it, it's a public health issue. And public health has made enormous strides. Smoking is a perfect example because in the 50s they published some original papers saying "We think cigarette smoke might cause cancer." And more and more research was done. It was taken up as a public health issue, because we realized that people were dying as a result of smoking. [00:18:30]
Crime scene footage Mattie Interview shot	MS: I'm worried. Are there going to be any African-American men left for my granddaughter to marry? Will she walk down the aisle with someone? Are they going to be any men left in our community? That's a question I have to ask. Because if they're not incarcerated they're being murdered [01:09:29] And it seems like planned genocide. [01:09:36]

Fade to black

TEXT: San Francisco is one in a handful of cities that address gun violence as a public health issue.

ABSTRACT:

Nearly 100,000 people are hit by a bullet every year in America -- and on average, 93 of them die daily. Outside the network of victims and survivors of gun violence, little attention is paid to this public health crisis. Enter Lynn Westry, a mother who prematurely lost her daughter, and invented a new strategy to combat gun violence in her neighborhood and city. Westry created CRISIS, a service that works alongside the San Francisco Department of Public Health, to help families cope with the trauma of community violence in a system that neglects them. Westry knew this was a public health problem, so recognizing that victims of gun crimes were often suspected perpetrators of later ones, as if violence were a contagious pathogen, she and her team of public health officials meet with police officers at crime scenes and immediately get to work on solving these traumatic effects physically and mentally. Mattie Scott is one of those mothers who Lynn helped. Scott's son, 24, was murdered trying to break up a fight at a graduation party around the corner from his house. He left two sons behind. The lack of care, concern, victim services, response in her son's death and the negative image attached to his murder by the media, turned Scott's pain into action. After connecting with Lynn, Mattie came up with the idea of having healing circles for mothers and fathers who lost their children as a way to address the lack of mental health services they desperately needed. Their unofficial motto became "Hurt people, hurt people and healed people, heal people." Both women are determined to bring attention to this major disparity of black and brown males being killed everyday in our streets. "Someone was going to pay attention to this epidemic," said Scott.

Source list:

"Interview with Dr. Jahan Fahimi." Personal interview. 2 Dec. 2016.

"Interview with Lynn Westry." Personal Interview. 17 Nov. 2016

"Interview with Mattie Scott." Personal Interview. 18 March 2017

Strategies for Reducing Gun Violence in American Cities. Rep. Everytown for Gun Safety/The National Urban League/Mayors Against Illegal Guns, July 2016. Web. Mar. 2017.

<<http://everytownresearch.org/documents/2016/06/strategies-reducing-gun-violence-american-cities.pdf>>