Acknowledgements:

There are many people to thank in the production of this volume, from the contributors, staff, print company and our benefactors at the University of California Los Angeles. As a student-run volume, we all juggled the load of classes, teaching, researching and writing the dissertation. The chaos has at times seemed overwhelming, and the patience of all who have waited on this issue is gratefully acknowledged.

Particular thanks, first and foremost, are due to Jill Lally, who served as much as a full editor than as managing editor by stepping in on very short notice despite her own commitments, and we thank her, as well as Miles and Jonas. Doris Namala, in her final writing year, served as our book review editor with grace and excellence.

Thanks are also due to our reading panel: Toba Friedman, Theodore Karasik, Elizabeth Crozier, Gabriel Wolfenstein, Susan Kling-Freeman, Thomas Dubois, D'Artagnan Phares, Joanna Poblete, Laura Talamante and Corey Hollis.

Our thanks to our faculty advisor for the journal, Prof. Stephen Frank, for advice and coffee. Similarly, Prof. Muriel McClendon for understanding when work was delayed. Prof. Kathryn Norberg has also provided sound advice from her experience at Signs from which we have all benefited.

Within our History Department we received invaluable support from staff and administration, including (in alphabetical order only): Ms. Barbara Bernstein, Ms. Kia Cha, Ms. Victoria Greene, Prof. Herman Ooms, Ms. Shela Patel, Ms. Mary Pottala, Ms. Alice Rose, and Ms. Pam Reid.

We could not have put forth this work without the support of the Graduate Student Association, as well as Graduate Division at UCLA.

In the course of production of this volume, we lost a friend and colleague, Laurie Kinsey, and I am grateful to the suggestion of Mr. Eric Johnson that this issue be dedicated to her memory.
